Jacko filmed as he abused me

By Carole Aye Muang in Los Angeles

A SECOND youngster has accused Michael Jackson of sex abuse, alleging the singer FILMED him as he carried out depraved acts.

Daniel Kapon also claims Jacko, 45, is a sadist who revelled in inflicting pain.

The teenager, now 18, sets out a catalogue of sickening abuse that started from the age of THREE.

And he makes the detailed accusations in a harrowing 28 minute and 50 second video as his case is studied by Los Angeles police.

Daniel said he was never taken to Jacko's bedroom to be abused—but to a chilling bare room without an ounce of comfort.

He recalled: "I wouldn't be in his bedroom. He'd do the sadistic acts, sometimes taping it, in a darkly lit room. He'd just be getting his kicks.

"The room had bare walls and had two camera lights and a chair which he'd make me sit in.

"There might have been a bed too. It was dark.

"I recall a director-type, an older guy with white hair. He would be holding the video camera and directing, telling Jackson what to do and sometimes they'd collaborate."

Daniel also alleged Jackson:

DRUGGED him in order to carry out depraved acts.

SWITCHED personality the second he was in private, changing from a charming companion to a "demon".

And ABUSED him for a total of six years at the star's two palatial homes, leaving him in turmoil.

The video recording Daniel's claims begins with his chilling words: "I was abused by Michael Jackson."

The singer already faces trial, possibly in September, accused of abusing cancer sufferer Gavin Arvizo when the lad was 12. Jacko, who denies all charges, could be jailed for 74 years on nine charges. Second accuser Daniel was clearly emotional on the video as he claimed he was filmed being forced to take part in "grotesque acts".

He added: "It seemed as if he was deriving pleasure from my pain."

Then he claimed Jackson would "be laughing demonically while this was happening." The youngster, currently in a safe house in Los Angeles, and now represented by highly respected lawyer Gloria Allred, said that there was nothing he could do to fight back.

He added: "I had no control over my body but I was still conscious.

"They drugged me. I was given a goblet of red wine. I suspect it had something in it." And he described the sinister change in Jackson's personality once he was in private. One minute they might be walking through grounds of the star's Neverland Ranch in California.

Once inside and out of sight of others, Jackson would turn off the charm like a tap. Daniel said: "In public, Jackson was charming, but when I was alone with him he was a freak. His whole demeanour changed. You have to have a totally whacked-out demeanour to even consider doing the things he's done to me. He was acting demonic, he was acting crazed. Very sadistic."

At this point, Daniel breaks down and asks to stop filming. When it resumes, his first words are: "He was verbally abusive, cursing, very crazed for power."

Daniel went on to describe Jackson's naked body.

He said: "I remember that his whole body was the same colour, very white, very pale."

The youngster's mother Suzanne says her son was introduced to Jackson by her estranged husband Danny.

Before long, the child became a regular visitor to Jackson's home in Encino and was also treated to a special birthday party at Neverland.

Daniel said he suffered abuse ordeals at both places.

He added: "I can remember things as far back as when I was three. I have a photographic memory."

"I vaguely remember first meeting Jackson—but the things that stick out in my mind are the sexual acts that occurred with him."

Intimate

"And I remember walking with Jackson on the trail at Neverland and holding his hand and talking to him. Just chit chat."

"Most of what I remember at around the age of 12 and 13 is just being alone with him and that other guy and all the sexual acts."

Mum Suzanne, who did not have custody of Daniel, said she had noticed bite marks on intimate parts of his body.

Asked if he has any pleasant memories of the star, Daniel spits: "Pleasant memories with Jackson? Only outside Neverland riding the rides."

Suzanne said she discovered her son knew Jacko shortly before his fourth birthday—when one of the star's songs came on the car radio.

She said: "My son was very agitated and started kicking my radio so that the knob came off. He told me, 'I don't like that'.

"I said, 'What? It's Michael Jackson'. He said, 'I don't like him'. I said, 'You're talking like you know him'. He said, 'I do' and started crying. I just flipped out."

Subject: Sources Claim Mother of Alleged Michael Jackson Victim Often Present While Kids Drank
Date: Thu, 24 Jun 2004 16:57:04 +0200
<http://www.jacksonaction.com/>

June 24, 2004— ABC News has learned how Michael Jackson could respond to allegations that he gave the boy who accused him of molestation alcohol and conspired to silence the boy's family.

Jackson, 45, has been accused of giving his alleged victim and the boy's siblings alcohol in soda cans. However, sources familiar with Jackson's side of the case have told ABC News that he adamantly denies ever giving liquor to the boy or knowing that the boy was consuming alcohol in his presence.

In addition, these sources told ABC News that there are witnesses who can testify that the alleged victim and his siblings were often seen drinking at Neverland when Jackson was not on the premises. They also told ABC News that the alleged victim's mother was often present when the children were drinking and did nothing to stop it.

"If the mother is present ... that would certainly cause a jury to think (a) What's the big deal? or (b) How could we possibly blame Michael Jackson for something that is being done in front of the kid's own mother?" said California criminal defense attorney Dana Cole, who is not involved in the case.

Jackson has pleaded not guilty to 10 charges that include: felony conspiracy with 28 overt acts involving child abduction, false imprisonment, extortion; committing lewd acts upon a child; attempting to commit a lewd act; and administering an intoxicating agent to a child.

The alleged victim in the case is believed to be a cancer survivor, now 14 years old, who spent time at Jackson's Neverland ranch and appeared in the British documentary Living With Michael Jackson, which was broadcast on ABC last year.

A Possible Defense Against Conspiracy and Silencing Family

The conspiracy charges against Jackson are rooted in allegations that Jackson and his associates harassed and tried to intimidate his alleged victim's family because they were worried about what the family might say to authorities. Jackson's associates are also accused of conspiring to imprison the alleged victim's family at both Neverland and a hotel in Calabasas, Calif.

But sources told ABC News that they expect Jackson's defense team to argue that the alleged victim's mother asked the entertainer to help put her up in the Calabasas hotel so that she could look for a new house.

Sources told ABC News that she wanted a place to hide after her son appeared on Living With Michael Jackson.

Friends of Jackson say that the mother had the freedom to come and go to the hotel and that she went on a shopping spree at Jackson's expense, sources told ABC News. California criminal defense attorney Cole said this defense, if true, would undermine prosecution allegations of conspiracy and false imprisonment.

"If you consent to go with someone, then it's clearly not an abduction," criminal defense attorney Cole said.

Hearing Set for Friday

Sources close to the alleged victim's family told ABC News that the mother was not free to leave the hotel in Calabasas and that the mother never saw or knew about her children's alcohol consumption. After learning about the drinking, the mother wanted to cut off contact between her family and Michael Jackson, these sources told ABC News.

A hearing in the molestation case against Jackson is scheduled to take place Friday in Santa Barbara Superior Court. Michael Jackson is not expected to appear at this hearing. An initial trial date has been set for September 13.

Reported by ABC News' Jessica Yellin on Good Morning America.

EVVY,
This is from a letter forwarded to me.
This may be interesting to look into: if this is true about the websites it seems this violates Michael's civil rights. If you want me to try and get more details...let me know.

Thanks for the info!

The NDAA is something I've been interested in, as they have ip addresses leading to their website which match some questionable anti-Michael sites. If you want that info, let me know.

Also, Sneddon was the VP of that group; I don't know if he still is. And they are very pro-Bush.

Just thought I'd add my 2-cents!
