1 2004, giving us less than one day to file our Reply. We, therefore, ask leave to file this Reply on
2 Friday, December 17, 2004. We have no objection to proceeding with the hearing as planned as long
3 as the Court will consider this Reply.

5 THE PROSECUTION'S OPPOSITION RESPONSE DOES NOT ADDRESS THE
6 ISSUES RAISED BY THE MOTION

7 The Prosecution takes a lot of time and space analyzing what the discovery means to them.
8 They do not address the real issue, which is what effect the production of discovery has on the 9 defense. They are also misleading the Court as to some representations, such as, that they have 10 provided reports or other materials when, in fact, they mean to say they provided them after we filed
11 our motion to continue. They also try to confuse the otherwise clear fact that they just recently 12 announced that they were going to try to bring in evidence from the 1993-94 period.

13 A. DISCOVERY PROVIDED AND THE PROSECUTION'S DEFECTIVE WITNESS
14 LIST

15 The prosecution does not dispute that their witness list was defective. They glibly say that 16 we should have been able to figure it out and that they have "already provided discovery" regarding 17 people on the list. Both of these contentions are false.

18 First, the witness list contained a number of misspelled names and other which are not correct
19 at all. They list [REDACTED] and now glibly tell the Court that [REDACTED] and [REDACTED]
20 [REDACTED] are two people who attended the raid on the Ranch on December 3, 2004. This is inexcusable
21 and did, in fact, waste considerable time of several lawyers and paralegals on the defense team over
22 a period of days. If this were the only instance, it would not be worth raising. However, it was part 23 of a generally sloppy list that left the defense guessing as to almost one-third of the list which was 24 diminished to a couple of unascertainable entries after a few days of hard work.

25 Instead of apologizing and taking responsibility, the prosecutors use sarcasm and 26 misdirection to try to convince the Court that the list was not a mess. For instance, they smugly say
27 that "[REDACTED]" is forensic accountant, as if it is our fault that we did not know that. They 28

1 neglect to tell the Court that they misspelled his name (it is [REDACTED]).

2 Second, the prosecution misleadingly says that they have provided addresses and resumes
3 in discovery, as if to suggest that we simply have not read the discovery and that it is our fault. They
4 neglect to say that the discovery was provided AFTER we filed our motion and AFTER we spent
5 days trying to figure out who these people are. They make no reference to the fact that the discovery
6 came AFTER the date of the discovery exchange date ordered by the Court. For instance, the CV
7 of Mr. [REDACTED] (whose name was misspelled on the December 6, 2004 list) was not provided until 8 December 15, 2004. They have not provided a report at all. In fact, they gave us his CV the SAME
9 day they served their Opposition to our Motion to Continue (the day before yesterday!).

10 This is also true of [REDACTED] [REDACTED] and [REDACTED]. We had their 11 names on December 6, 2004 and no other information. The limited discovery provided did not arrive
12 until December 15, 2004. As to [REDACTED] and [REDACTED] we still do not have reports and 13 we are told that they do not know which of the experts they will call. It is too late for that sort of 14 game on the part of the prosecution. Obviously, the defense has to know who is going to testify and 15 as to what, so that we can investigate, obtain consultants, and hire experts.

16 B. 1993-1994 INVESTIGATION

17 The prosecution also casts the production of the voluminous documents relating to the 18 1993-94 investigation in a false light. They say that the defense requested these materials as if that 19 excuses their failure to provide them at all for months during the pendency of the case. They say
20 they did not intend to call witnesses in these reports but they now disclose them on their witness list.

21 This is incredible. How could they not have thought about this issue until October of 2004?
22 However, even if this is true, the fact remains that Mr. Sneddon has had over 11 years with this 23 material and the defense is now given 3 months before trial, and less, before having to respond to 24 a comprehensive motion under Section 1108 filed by the prosecution.
